PEACE TIME WORK OF RED CROSS

A letter received by all local Red Cross Chapters, through the Northern Division office, Minneapolis, Minn., asks for suggestion from the chapters on the proper peace time work for the Red Cross, aside from the programs already outlined for the Nursing, Home Service and Junior Membership departments.

The letter is written by Mrs. August Belmont, formerly the actress Eleanor Ross, and has been sent to every Red Cross Chapter in the United States.

"The great war is ended," said Mrs. Belmont, "but the world still needs the help of the Red Cross to meet the widespread disease and human suffering resulting from it, and also to build here in America a healthier and finer community life."

"Hundreds of chapters have expressed their desire to 'carry on.' Through the medium of a questionnaire, a special national committee will gather suggestions from chapters all over the country and endeavor to develop from them a general, though flexible and detailed, program for peace time activities."

"Chapters often have unique situations and possibilities that must be considered; in the future, not all will be working to meet the same needs, but all can work, as during the war, with a common impulse of consecrated service for the health and well being of humanity, under the common symbol of our Red Cross."

"Catch the Dog!"

"Mrs. Howe was always thoughtful of animals. During the reign at 241 Beacon street of the little fox terrier Patch, it often fell to her lot to take him out to walk, and she felt this to be a grave responsibility.

"One day Patch ran away on Beacon street, and would not come when she called him. At this instant Doctor Holmes, passing, paused for a friendly greeting.

"Mrs. Howe," he said, "I trust this fine morning."

"Catch the dog!" cried Mrs. Howe. One author flew one way, one the other; between them Patch was caught and brought in triumph home."—From the Life of Julia Ward Howe, by her daughters.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. J. K. Pearce Entertained at Dinner in Honor of Her Husband

Wednesday evening at her home, Mrs. J. K. Pearce entertained at a 7 o'clock dinner, in honor of Mr. Pearce, it being his birthday. Covers were laid for twelve and a delightful repast was enjoyed, at which the works of art vied with those of nature by the charming centerpiece which adorned the table, pink and white carnations being the chosen flower.

Mr. Pearce was given a handsome scarf pin, Rev. H. J. Wolner making the presentation and assured Mr. Pearce while soon to leave Brainerd and its associations, he would be greatly missed, both in the church and community, but the lasting friendship of his true friends manifested in a slight degree by the little token of remembrance, with best wishes would accompany and abide with him in his future home.

Music followed and Mr. Pearce rendered the solo "The Stranger's Story," Rev. Wolner, "The Holy City" and "Saved by Grace." Mrs. Wolner being the accompanist. All expressed themselves as having spent a very enjoyable evening and regretted the losing of such amiable people as the Peaces from their midst. Mr. and Mrs. Pearce will make their future home in Portland, Oregon, leaving Brainerd about the middle of August.

SAFELY CROSSES
ATLANTIC OCEAN

Giant British Dirigible Lands at Mineola, N. Y., After an Exciting Air Trip.

NEARLY OUT OF FUEL

Lighter Than Air Machine Makes Trip From Scotland to United States Without a Halt in 108 Hours and 12 Minutes.

Mineola, N. Y., July 7.—Great Britain's super-dirigible, the R-34, the first lighter-than-air machine to cross the Atlantic ocean, anchored here at Roosevelt flying field after an aerial voyage of 108 hours and 12 minutes, which covered 3,330 knots or approximately 3,900 land miles.

Passing through dense banks of clouds, with the sun and sea visible only at rare intervals, the R-34 was forced to cruise 2,650 knots to reach Trinity Bay, N. F., from East Fortune, Scotland, and 1,080 knots from there to Mineola.

When the super-airship arrived here she had left only enough petrol to keep her moving 90 minutes longer. Her crew, almost sleepless for four and a half days, was weary almost to the point of exhaustion, but happy at the successful completion of an epoch-making trip. The return voyage will be started Tuesday at 8 a. m.

Crew Haggard From Vigil.

Haggard, unshaven, their eyes bloodshot from the long vigil and lines of care bitten deep into their faces, Maj. G. H. Scott, the commander, and his officers showed plainly the effects of the anxious hours through which they lived while they were cruising over the far reaches of Canada and the Bay of Fundy, beset by fog, heavy winds and terrific electrical storms.

"It seemed as though the atmosphere was haunted by 5,000 devils," said Lieut. Guy Harris, the meteorological officer.

With the R-34 long overdue at its destination, petrol supply running low, and buffeted by strong head winds Major Scott decided, while over the Bay of Fundy, to send a wireless call to the American Navy department to prepare to give assistance if it were needed. This was merely a measure of precaution and did not indicate discouragement.

Hoodoo Lifts.

While destroyers and submarine chasers were racing to her assistance, the R-34 was plugging steadily ahead on the way to Mineola. Once clear of the Bay of Fundy the atmospheric hoodoo, which had beset the craft from the time it took the air, was gradually left in its wake.

The R-34 headed southwest out across the Atlantic along the coast of Maine, her nose pointed for Cape Cod, with the United States destroyer Hancock hanging on her tail and in constant wireless communication with her. The destroyer stuck in the wake of the air monster, running under forced draft until Cape Cod was reached, and then the dirigible cut across "lots."

It had been decided on the voyage along the coast that unless a favoring wind came up the R-34 would be forced to land at Montauk Point, and a wireless message was sent out making that announcement. Fortune finally favored the dirigible and the wind veered to her favor.

Is this the way?

HER MISTAKE

By MILDRED WHITE

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union)

Janey sat a long while with the letter in her hand. In fancy she was going over that long blissful time since she had met Robert and the tenor of her life had been forever changed. Before that, it was an uneventful routine.

But after Robert's advent, unrest had stirred within her, and dissatisfaction with life's simple homeliness. Robert Tabor, city business man, had bought as an investment, the great farm near Janey's home, and when the caretaker had been duly installed, Robert Tabor came out to look the place over. So pleased and interested was he, that he lingered for weeks, seeking and finding hospitality in Janey's home.

It had never been her opportunity to hear at first hand of remote wonderful parts of the world, for this engaging man from the city had traveled and learned much. It was a never ceasing delight to ride over the farm lands, in his swift running car, or to drive at his side in a light carriage through the narrower paths.

Janey's guardian aunt was quite willing that this should be so, she had no wish to keep Janey forever at her side. All at once Janey had been ashamed of the simple cut of her home-made frocks, her lack of knowledge of the ways of the great outside world.

"I want to go to the city," she confided to her new friend. "I want to learn to be like them."

"Clothes you mean?" Robert Tabor had asked, amused.

"Clothes, manners, everything," Janey declared.

The aunt, much persuaded, arranged with an old friend in the city to have Janey visit her there, and Robert—as both now called him—continued kind with his attentions. In his care Janey visited restaurants, opera, theaters; with him she had driven through the beautiful parks.

"Oh! how I love it all!" she said. Home seemed very dull afterward.

Robert's visits to his farm were the only bright spots, and as fall drew near and these visits threatened to cease, Janey grew wan in apprehension.

With the harvest moon looking down upon them, glorifying their radiant faces—Robert had asked Janey to marry him and she had consented.

Robert wanted her, he longed for her and despotic business held him tied in the city. Would she come for a visit to his married sister's home? Would she come?

In a fever of joyful anticipation Janey rushed to her aunt's room to begin preparation. Robert was pale and worried looking when he met her at the station. Absently he glanced over the modish suit and hat which had cost her aunt a forbiddingly extravagant price.

In the brilliant gathering which his sister generously arranged for Janey her fear grew, at his gloomy abstraction. This tactful man was a different person certainly from the joyously enthusiastic master of the farm. And Robert's sister had assured Janey that she need have no anxiety on the score of adjustability.

"You seem to have grown up among us dear," she said.

At the hotel dinner, smiling into her lover's eyes across the roses heaped between them, Janey saw a shadow there.

"You like all this, don't you?" Robert asked.

"So much," she agreed, ever eager to please.

Futiles she asked herself each night in what she had failed for her fiancé seemed to grow more distantly absorbed. Suddenly Janey longed with homesick yearning for the restful atmosphere of the country she knew, for the long walks through the silent places where she could think seriously or find herself again. For Janey realized that her life of late had been but profitless effort to learn the part she would be expected to play in the future, and in sickness of heart she wondered if she would be able to carry that weary part through with Robert always unappreciative at her side.

Frankly but with a triumphant catch

in her voice, Janey told him one day her problem:

"I don't seem to fit in Robert," she said, "no matter how hard I try. I'm a disappointment to you, I feel it. Take me back to the quiet place that I best know, and leave me there."

Unbelieving, her lover stared into her face.

"But you used to tell me," he said "that you longed for the life of a city! That is why, after I had bought the farm, intending to make it my headquarters, that I returned again to the business world, for your sake, Janey, because you said you loved gayety. My youthful years have been crowded full of work and care. It was my dream that in early success I might find leisure, again to enjoy those things that I loved as a boy. But without your presence I cannot now enjoy anything."

"Could you be happy with me out there Janey? When tired of fields and meadows, we would travel. Could you go back with me dear, to the farm?" Through tears Janey smiled at him.

"Why Robert," she said, "it will be just like going straight back to Paradise."

Need for Eternal Vigilance.

"We first make our habits and then our habits make us," said an unknown sage. In other words, what we are at this moment, what we can do at this moment, depends not only upon making up our minds at the time being, but also upon how we have made up our minds countless other times in thousands of minutes already gone by and now out of our control. The one thing we cannot control is the past; it may, however, control us for good or for evil. The fact that we should remember in forming habits is that our minds and hearts are the meeting ground of strange conflicts; that good and bad in us are making opposite suggestions; that each is striving for the mastery; and that sometimes we are so self-deluded that the bad may seem to be the good. At any hour the beginnings of a vicious habit, perhaps through the suggestion of someone else or by our own carelessness, indifference, or faults, may find their way into our hearts. The price we must pay for continually proving and possessing the good is eternal vigilance.—Exchange.

Discouraged Aids to Beauty.

In the day of Louis XIV LaBruyere wrote this: "If women only desire to be beautiful in each other's eyes they may, of course, follow their own caprice or taste as to the way in which they dress and adorn themselves; but if they desire to please men, if it is to charm them they rouge and paint. I can assert in the name of mankind, or at least of those men whose votes I have taken, that white and red paints make women look old and hideous; that it is as disgusting to see women with paint on their faces as with false teeth in their mouths and waxen balls to puff out their thin cheeks; and that far from countenancing it, men solemnly protest against all such arts, which infallibly tend to cure them of love."

The wonder arises if LaBruyere spoke only for the men of his time.

The Crow's Voice.

The crow is one of the most widely disliked of birds. His reputation is bad, and is probably deserved.

No matter how long you study the crow, you will always have something to learn, and at the end of all your study he will know more about you than you will about him. At times it seems as if he knew what you were thinking about.

The crow has a large variety of notes or calls, and each one seems to be the harshest in all bird vocalism until the next one is sounded, which is a little harsher. He is an accomplished bird, and intelligent. If tamed, he can be taught many things, but never to be good. He is a natural thief, and cannot be reformed.

DOGS ONCE WERE WORSHIPED

Custom Practiced in Many Countries in Past Ages—Ethiopia Had One for a Monarch.

Dog worship spread from Egypt to many other countries, where it took different forms. The Romans sacrificed dogs to Anubis, the lesser dog star, Procyon, and to Pan, and the Greeks made similar offerings to propitiate Proserpine, Mars, Hecate and other imaginary beings of whom they stood in fear, says National Geographic Magazine.

Plutarch says: "The circle which touches and separates the two hemispheres, and which on account of this division has received the name of horizon, is called Anubis. It is represented under the form of a dog because this animal watches during the day and during the night."

Out of this idea it seems there arose two mythical personages—Mercury, or Hermes, and Cerberus, the three-headed dog supposed to guard the gates of hell.

But there were humbugs even in those days, and they humbugged the dog worshippers even as charlatans often humbug Christians today. Perhaps the limit of deception was practiced on a certain nation in Ethiopia, which is said to have been bamboozled into actually setting up a dog for its king. Chai in royal robes and with a crown upon his head, he sat upon his throne and received the homage of his subjects. He signified his approval by barking. He conferred honors upon a person by licking his hand, and a growl might condemn a man to captivity or death.

ARE OF CHRISTIAN ORIGIN

Possibly Less Than Half the People of the Ottoman Empire Have Moslem Ancestry.

"Probably less than half of the men, women and children called Turks owe their ancestry to the Mongol and Moslem tribesmen who migrated from inner Asia to Anatolia," says George E. White, D. D., in the American Review of Reviews. "Probably the larger part are of ancestry once reckoned Christian. This is confirmed by the fact that the physical characteristics of Mongols have largely faded out. They visibly persist in some, notably in Tartars immigrant from the Crimea or the Balkan states, whose lineage is comparatively pure. This but emphasizes the differences in the case of the Anatolian stock."

"In the heart of what we call the Turkish empire approximately one-fourth of the population are avowedly Christian; approximately a fourth of the remainder, the Shiias, are nearer in sentiment to Christians than to regular Mohammedans; a majority of the whole are of Christian origin. Force has held them together until now, but 'blood will tell,' and the principle of 'reversion to type' cannot be escaped. After careful observations continued during many years of residence in the country I am convinced that the Mohammedan Turks do not increase in numbers, possibly as the penalty of nature for the permission of polygamy, while the Ottoman Christians do increase rapidly unless checked by periods of massacre. If, then, some two million to five million Mongol immigrants filtered into Asia Minor, their descendants, possibly reach those numbers today; the rest of the population is to be credited with Christian ancestry."

Premier of Greece Rejoices at Conclusion of Peace.

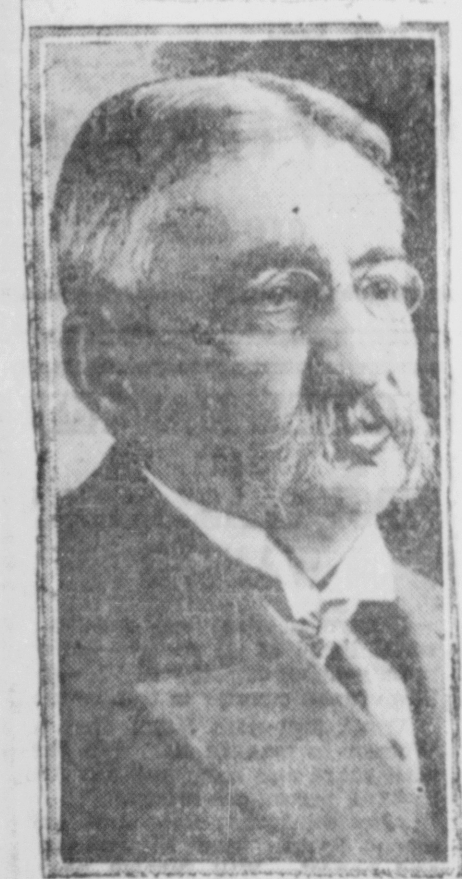

Asserts Most Powerful For Concedes Defeat and Accepts Heavy but Just Conditions.

Saloniki, July 7.—General Panagoulas, in an order of the day to troops, issued Premier Venizelos' announcement to his people on the signing of the German peace treaty at Versailles. The message says:

"The world commences to breathe. The strongest of our enemies recognized his complete defeat and accepts the heavy but just conditions of the Allies."

"The signing of this peace will be followed rapidly by the submission of our more direct enemies, Bulgaria and Turkey, and this latter action will restore liberty to many thousands of our brothers in the Greek islands, as well as to the peoples living there, and will enable Greece again to become a rich state and to enjoy the benefits of peace assured by the league of nations. The Greek army may be proud of its participation in this gigantic work."

DEBATE ON LEAGUE IS STILL BITTER

PRESIDENT WILSON MAY WITH-HOLD THE TREATY ENTIRELY FOR THE PRESENT.

WOULD BECOME PARTY ISSUE

Opponents of the Covenant in the Senate Trying to Find Common Base on Which They May All Stand.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—So many possibilities have a part in the final action of the senate of the United States on the peace treaty and the covenant of the League of Nations that it is virtually impossible either to name them or to enumerate them. The opponents of the league as it stands already have put in nine or ten different propositions affecting the document. The proponents of the league, of course, stand for it as it is.

It is conceivable that if the senate sanctions the covenant, but with reservations, the United States may not become a member of the League of Nations, at least for some time to come. There are precedents which would enable the president of the United States, if he did not like the action of the senate, simply to withhold the treaty, thus keeping it from going into effect. This kind of thing happened in one or two cases during President Taft's administration.

If, as the outcome of the action of the senate, the administration should go to the extreme of withholding the document, the matter then would become a clean-cut issue before the people and in a way it would have to become a party issue, because most of the senate opponents of the treaty are Republicans, and most of its supporters are Democrats. It is said that the division is sharp enough to make the treaty necessarily an issue between the Republican and the Democratic parties before the people. In case the treaty is amended or "reserved," it is thought the president would simply keep it for the time being within the precincts of the state department.

Acrimony in the Senate Unabated.

Thus far the acrimony in the senate has the same edge that it acquired when the document first came before that body for consideration. The daily debates have not in any way disclosed a falling off in personalities, or in sharp exchanges in the field of the covenant itself. Senators have come pretty close to calling other senators liars. They haven't quite done it, but the inference has been there.

In this connection there is something a trifle curious. The senate has just passed a resolution calling the attention of the house of representatives to the fact that one of its members recently said something about a senator of the United States which he had no right to say. The member who was complained of intimated that the senator in question was not unfriendly to Washington profiteers.

The senate, in a formal resolution, has asked the house of representatives to take the proper action in the case, which means, of course, that the senate expects the house to rebuke the offending member and to tell him not to do it again, and moreover, the senate probably expects an apology.

This incident is mentioned because it shows that senators in the heat of their own debates will stand things from one another that they do not intend to stand from anybody else. There is something deeper than this, also. If the house and the senate ever got to calling one another names it would be a bad day for the country and for legislation. So far as their relations are concerned, the two houses must maintain cordiality and dignity.

Opponents Try to Get Together.

The opponents of the League of Nations in the senate today are trying hard to find some one centralized rallying point. The Republican senators who are opposed to the covenant as it stands are trying to fix on something definite to offer as an amendment or a reservation and which shall have the support of all the Republican opponents of the covenant plus the support of the Democratic senators who are with them in opposition.

The opponents of the league are finding difficulties in getting one base of opposition on which to stand. At least two Democratic senators and one Republican senator are opposed utterly to any kind of a league. It may be that these will refuse to compromise in any way. There are several Republican senators who are in favor of the league, but some of them may be induced to stand for a reservation, or perhaps two or three reservations.

If the opponents of the league do manage to get together the battle will be much more clean-cut than it is at present. The proponents of the league in the senate thus far have maintained a united front. With two united fronts the fight will be a worthier one than it is today when it largely is taking on the nature of skirmishes between the advance lines and of occasional exchanges between the heavy artillery.

Some senators seem to be convinced that a good many European statesmen would not be at all unhappy if the league were rejected by the senate, while others seem to think that nearly all the European statesmen would be dejected and feel more or less humiliated if the senate should decree that the United States must stand aloof.

EDITORS ENJOY ANNUAL OUTING

Minnesota Newspaper Men Go to Beautiful Bemidji for Summer Frolic.

TWO HUNDRED ATTEND

Lumber Camp Dinner and Fish Dinner in Itasca Park With Entertainment at Birchmont Among Features of Two Days' Jaunt.

The most successful, the best managed, the most satisfactory outing of the newspaper men and women of this state have had, since the old days of the State Association excursions, is the verdict after the outing that closed at Bemidji last Sunday. On the Northern Minnesota Editorial Association has fallen the mantle of those former days when railroads furnished special trains and boat companies boats and vied with each other to carry the editors of Minnesota. This climax came in the administration of President W. E. Verity of the Wadena Pioneer Journal and was another of his successes in behalf of the association.

Nearly as many newspapers of Southern Minnesota as of Northern Minnesota were represented, and the only rivalry was in having a good time at Beautiful Birchmont, the superlative resort of superlative Bemidji. Some one has called Bemidji "The City of Enterprises." It deserves the name. It is an example of what a city can do when it is not loaded down with any one over-rich man or any one dominating industry. Bemidji is a city of young men who pull as a team. They are all prosperous. No one has any excuse for not being prosperous.

It is not to be wondered then that the two hundred who responded to the Northern association's invitation found out of superlatives and had only exclamation points left when Bemidji marshaled a half hundred autos and whirled them away to Itasca State Park, just a good hour's ride through a forest country broken by splendid farms. The park which is in fact a monument to Douglas, whose child it is, preserves for all future generations Lake Itasca, the source of the Mississippi and except that at Lake Itasca, the only remaining large body of Norway pine, the most stately and impressive of all the pines mingled with the birch rightly called The Lady of the Forest. This crowned a wonderful three days' outing and placed the wreath of honor on the association. To it, to Bemidji, to Birchmont, to the Park these men showed thanks, congratulations and praise, all deserved and all spontaneously given. Thursday evening the guests were entertained at an informal reception at Birchmont where the 21st Battalion Band rendered a short concert followed by a dance.

Saturday morning was devoted to a trip about Bemidji where the Crookston Mill, the new Normal and other points of interest were shown the visitors.

At noon one of the features of the outing was staged when the Crookston Lumber Company entertained the editors and friends at a typical camp dinner. Tables were set in the natural forests near Birchmont, where fish and beans were served to nearly three hundred people. A. A. D. Rahn, Bert Lakin and the Bemidji officers of the company were untiring in their efforts to make the meal a success.

In the afternoon a program of races was held at the summer hotel, the events being under the personal direction of the supply men who had also provided the prizes. The competition was keen, entries liberal and excitement intense. The winners were as follows:

Ladies' Egg and Spoon Race: Mrs. W. F. Marcum, Bemidji Sentinel.

Fat Men's Race: L. A. Bradford, Verndale Sun.

Married Women's Race: Mrs. H. Z. Mitchell, Bemidji Sentinel.

Thin Men's Race: W. W. Jones, Gouville Banner.

Single Ladies' Race: Margaret Oberg, Blackduck American.

Tug-of-War—Men—Southern Minnesota team.

Tug-of-War—Ladies—Northern Minnesota team.

Children under 15: Margaret Cheney, Minneapolis Journal.

A free for all speaking contest in which the participants were called on by Chairman Wilke who announced the subject, the discussion being limited to three minutes or less, resulted in prizes being awarded to Mrs. H. M. Phillips of the Mahanomen Pioneer and H. Z. Mitchell of the Bemidji Sentinel.

In the evening President Verity called the guests to order and introduced Judge C. W. Stanton of Bemidji, a former editor and member of the association. Judge Stanton reviewed interestingly some of the early history of the association, recalling many of the older members who have since passed to their reward.

M. H. McMahon, secretary of the St. Paul Association, made a decided hit with his remarks on Co-operation and Community Progress.

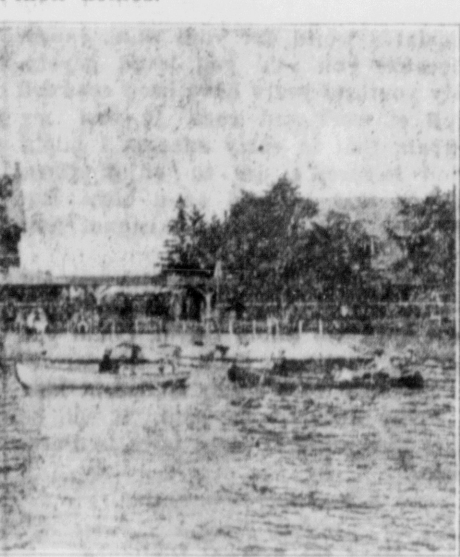

Former Mayor R. G. Waugh of Winnipeg brought a message of greeting to the people of Minnesota from the Canadian brethren.

Premier T. C. Norris fresh from the scene of the sympathetic strike told of the progress of the labor troubles in Canada, the aftermath of the great war. "The strike fell of its own weight," declared Mr. Norris. "The labor unions were not responsible for the trouble. It was the strike element, the same disturbing factor that you have here in the states." Premier Norris declared that both the United States and Canada would have the same economic problems to solve and urged the same shoulder to shoulder fight that was staged against the Hun. He was roundly applauded frequently during the speech.

Sunday morning an impressive service was held in memory of the late Frank J. Meyer, President Verity presided. Secretary Rutledge read a biographical sketch and W. P. Kirkwood presented to the members a most touching tribute, written by H. C. Hotelling of Mapleton, who was unable to be present. Wm. Wilke, Grey Eagle, G. S. Pease of Anoka, Fred Hadley of Winnebago and F. M. McClellan of Minneapolis delivered brief eulogies.

Dinner was given the members at Itasca State Park through the courtesy of State Forester, W. T. Cox and Supl. Stilwell of the park. The drive was taken in the Bemidji cars and the dinner served in one of the beauty spots of the state forest where the students at the forestry school had charge of culinary arrangements.

Following an inspection of the many points of interest in and about the park the guests returned to Bemidji to take their trains or motored on to their homes.

BIRCHMONT BEACH HOTEL AT BEMIDJI, The Headquarters of the Northern Minnesota Editorial Association a Their Summer Outing, June 27 to 29th, 1919.

At the park the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

In closing our annual outing for 1919, which has been one of the most successful and enjoyable in the history of the Association, the members of the Northern Minnesota Editorial Association wish to express their appreciation for the hearty hospitality of the good people of Bemidji, whom nature has especially favored in providing for the health and pleasure of the members of the association. We are highly indebted to "Doc" for his indefatigable efforts to insure an enjoyable outing. This also goes to Brother Verity, president of the Association.

We wish to express our gratitude to the Crookston Lumber Company, and Andy Rahn, its president, for their capacity for planning, promoting and carrying out in detail an outing which has always remained a high spot in the memory of those who participated. We are highly indebted to "Doc" for his indefatigable efforts to insure an enjoyable outing. This also goes to Brother Verity, president of the Association.

We express our appreciation of the inspiring message delivered by E. M. McMahon, secretary of the St. Paul Association, and P. C. Norris of Manitoba, and Former Mayor Waugh of Winnipeg for their cordial greetings from our neighbors to the north, with whom we have always enjoyed such friendly relations.

We sincerely thank A. L. Western, through whom the Western Newspaper Union is furnishing this association a two-column plate of the official history of the association, the members of the Twin City Supply House for their generous donation of prizes for a contest of the program of the races at the outing.

The association members wish to express their deepest sympathy to the bereaved family of the late Frank J. Meyer, who was called to his reward by the Dark Angel after a faithful service in his life. The association has lost a true and loyal friend, and one who will be sorely missed and long remembered by not only the members of the association, but by thousands of others who hailed him as a friend.

We renew our interest in the establishment of a School of Journalism at the State University, and trust that the university authorities will take steps to hasten the consummation of the hopes of the newspapermen of Minnesota in this regard.

We note with gratification that the woman suffrage amendment finally succeeded in passing Congress and we hope to see Minnesota near the top in the list of states to ratify the amendment. In passing we pay our compliments to a member of this party, J. J. E. L. Callahan who has been an ardent champion of this worthy cause.

We pause in the enjoyment of this outing to express our sympathy to the good people of Fergus Falls whose hospitality we enjoyed at our annual meeting two years ago. We condole with them over the terrible loss of life and property which resulted from the tornado which swept over the city with almost no warning, we admire the spirit of enterprise and the courage of the people of Fergus Falls which found expression in an immediate resolve to rebuild the devastated portions of the city.

We are gratified to note the excellent progress being made in the campaign of education which has been launched on behalf of the Babcock plan for the construction of 7,000 miles of paved trunk highways in Minnesota, and which was first suggested to the people of the state by Highway Commissioner Babcock at the winter meeting of the association in Wadena last January.

We pledge the co-operation of the editors of this Association in promoting the campaign which will result in the passage of the Babcock amendment in November, 1920, and give Minnesota the best system of highways in the Northwest.

Committee on Resolutions, H. F. Phillips, Mahanomen, George J. L. Horton, E. W. Whiting, Owatonna, Herman Rae, Northfield.

AMUSEMENTS

At the Best Today

Adapted from Bartley Campbell's "Fairfax," a memorable society drama, and brought up to date with some thrilling war scenes, "The Crucible of Life," in which Grace D'Armond is featured, is today's attraction at the Best theatre.

Many stunning features have been presented at this theatre, but seldom, if ever, has one so strong in its dramatic climaxes, so engrossing in its elements of love and patriotism been screened in this city.

At the Best Tomorrow

Beautiful Lake Placid, in the Adirondacks Mountains in New York, was the background for many of the most charming scenes pictured in "The Make-Believe Wife." Billie Burke's new Paramount photoplay, which will be shown at the Best theatre tomorrow. This is a rollicking photo-comedy in which Miss Burke displays her talents as a comedienne to the best possible advantage.

In the story Miss Burke portrays the role of a young society woman who is engaged to a lawyer. She is hostess to a house party at her home in the Adirondacks when she and a young athletic society man stray off into the mountains together and are lost. They are seeking their bearings when a storm comes up and they are obliged to spend the night in a cabin which they providentially discover.

This unusual situation is made the pretext for a demand upon the couple to wed, after they have been found by a searching party. They agree to this, for each secretly loves the other despite the fact that they are promised in other quarters. After their marriage the groom hastens away to China, so as to permit his bride to obtain a divorce. But through the substitution of suitcases this plan goes awry and the couple are later reunited under dramatic and highly amusing circumstances, as the sequel proves.

CHAPLIN AND WOOD IN FILM

Marie Canel in Duluth News Tribune July 2 Reviews "Sunnyside," Pleasing Crowds at Strand

Charlie Chaplin's "Sunnyside" is being presented at the Strand in Duluth this week and Marie Canel reviews the film in the Duluth News Tribune of July 2 under the heading "Chaplin and Wood in Film." Miss Canel's criticism takes the form of a letter to her friend as follows:

Dear Charlie: Some people try to talk to you about Charlie Chaplin in exactly the same way they used to talk about Christy Mathewson—as a has-been, but they surely are wrong, believe me, Charlie! There's something about that man's acting that makes one laugh and forget the sordid troubles of the world at large, so it seems to me. And you're going to like "Sunnyside" yes you are, Charlie!

Tom Wood, of Brainerd, is in the movie and of course you'll like him. That man is just as fat as he was when he weighed 500 pounds here, and perhaps that's why he got into the film. Between me and you and wide, wide world I wonder if you being thin will have anything to do with your getting into pictures, Charlie! Fat Wood reminds one just the tiniest bit of Fatty Arbuckle.

Charlie Chaplin is cast as a male Orphan Annie. The poor man is far from the maddening crowd, away out in the country, where he has to work for a brutal employer, and it's some work, believe you me, Charlie! He takes care of the chickens, mends the fences and does millions of chores. And then added to his troubles the city man—with city in capital letters—comes to rob the poor hired man of his rustic sweetheart. Then there are so many other things that happen that one just can't tell about all of them, but it's truly interesting.

The picture has sustained interest values and it will please all of the Chaplin fans even though it is different from previous films. Better music would have improved the feature, but Mr. Clinton has promised to get some for us. There's also a G. M. Anderson picture, so you can call it a day of comedy and drama.

With love, your own, ANGELA.

It is All Gone Now

Saukel L. Kramer, Box 95, Sellersville, Pa., writes: "I had kidney trouble for two years and had a terrible backache. That is all gone now after using Foley Kidney Pills and I feel well again." Foley Kidney Pills get results quickly and are tonic in their healing and soothing effect. H. P. Dunn.

LAZINESS ACTING AS SPUR

Good Work Done by Those Who Dislike It, and Want to Get Through and Rest.

The best work is done by the lazy people who want to get through and rest. The industrious, active body, busy as a bee, and always at it, is very liable to become a putterer.

Mark Twain called attention to the fact that the ant, to whom the sage recommended the sluggard to go, spends most of his energy in running around like a drunken Indian.

The great humorist hated to move; he used to give the boy in the printing office a nickel to sweep around him, so that he would not have to take his feet off the table. At seventy he confessed that "all exercise is loathsome."

Laziness is not good in itself; but when joined to conscientiousness and a sense of responsibility, as it often is, it is the very best worker.

The world's work is done by those who do not like it. Nine persons out of ten would quit what they are doing if they could.

At the very beginning of Arnold Bennett's novel, "Hilda Lessways," is a luminous bit of philosophy: "Hilda hated domestic work, and because she hated it she often did it passionately and thoroughly."

Mark Twain hated to write.—Dr. Frank Crane, in Farm Life.

MUST CONCENTRATE TO WIN

Though Thorough Absorption May Be Carried Too Far, It Is Necessary to Success.

There is always danger, when anyone concentrates, that the concentration will be carried too far—so far that it produces a narrow, one-sided and warped point of view. The great scientist, the great scholar, the great thinker in any line is usually not an all-around "good fellow." "Crabbed," "queer," "peculiar," "odd," "funny" and "warped"—are these not the adjectives that generally describe the geniuses of the world? The very effort to concentrate on the one subject which has brought success has made it impossible to keep in touch with the thousand-and-one currents of thought and topics of conversation which go to make up comfortable and easy-going life. Like the old sea captain, these geniuses miss something in their effort to fix their attention on one thing.

In spite of this danger, it is a good thing to work for concentration. The likelihood of becoming one-sided is big where genius is concerned, but then it can be excused. Most of us can safely concentrate our attention and still feel sure that we will keep in touch with the world about us.

MAYOR LITTLE ASKS CITY TO AID

Machinists Union First to Respond to Appeal for Cash to Aid Stricken Fergus Falls

THE CONTRIBUTIONS PUBLISHED

Work of Reconstruction in Progress. 50 Were Killed in Cyclone and Millions Property Damage

Following an appeal addressed to him by the Fergus Falls Tornado Relief Commission, asking aid, Mayor F. E. Little requests all citizens and associations of Brainerd to do what they can in a financial way to assist in the reconstruction of the stricken city.

Contributions may be sent the Dispatch office and same will be published when received and will be transmitted to the proper committee in Fergus Falls.

The first to subscribe was the Machinists' Union of Brainerd of which Mayor Little is an honored member. They donated $10. Others will subscribe no doubt, as soon as they see that the mayor has asked that Brainerd should respond to the cry of distress from a sister city.

In a letter the Fergus Falls Tornado Relief Commission states:

"Information in regard to the terrible calamity which has befallen the city of Fergus Falls has gone to every part of the country. It is now necessary to take up the work of reconstruction. More than fifty of our citizens have been killed and nearly two hundred seriously injured. More than 400 residences of an average value of $2,000 each have been destroyed and the contents, including furniture, wearing apparel and food, scattered to the winds. At least forty per cent of the business district is injured; all but two churches are ruined; the court house and all the school houses are seriously damaged. A conservative estimate of the loss is $2,500,000. At least 15 per cent of the loss falls upon the people who are unable to stand it and many of them have serious injuries. At least $250,000 is required to partially restore the homes of the needy to an habitable condition.

"Governor J. A. A. Burnquist issued a proclamation calling attention to the catastrophe and said 'that an urgent appeal is made to the people of Minnesota to contribute as generously as possible to a fund to be used in assisting the stricken families and aid in the reconstruction of the sections destroyed.'"

Brainerd Shows its Stamina and Recuperative Powers by Coming Out From Under Sunday

GAME WAS A REAL THRILLER

Molstad in Box for Brainerd, Cadreau Pitched for the Verndale Potato Boys

In Sunday afternoon's game at Verndale, Brainerd gave a splendid exhibition of its staying powers and its ability to recuperate from a score of 6 to 0, having the short end of the score, and to win at the finish, the final frame reading Brainerd 14, Verndale 8.

Molstad pitched steady, consistent ball and landed a home run in the ninth inning. Benda carried off batting honors, getting five hits in six times to bat.

Verndale scored right from the start. Heed, hit by Molstad, made first, was advanced to second by Cadreau's sacrifice, stole third and came home on a passed ball. In the third and fourth innings Verndale got three hits a piece and scored 2 and 1 runs. On an error and two hits in the fifth Verndale chalked up two more runs.

In the sixth inning Brainerd got busy. Benda hit. Richardson fanned. Sheffo and Carlson drew singles. Molstad got a hit, and was run down later between bases. Stallman got to first on a fielder's choice. The value of running out a third strike was clearly shown in the case of Gaskill, who beat out one and eventually scored. Templeton finished the frame by getting a hit and being retired at second.

Brainerd pulled off a classy double play in the sixth, Schuft being retired Benda to Templeton on second, and Fox was nailed, Templeton to Cook on first.

In the seventh inning Carlson got a two-bagger and singles were made by Benda, Richardson and Molstad.

In the eighth frame Stallman got a two-bagger, Gaskill a sacrifice, Cook and Benda singles.

In the ninth a total of five runs, six hits was garnered. The whole team came to bat. Molstad got a home run, Benda a two-bagger, and Templeton, Cook, Richardson and Carlson singles.

The attendance was good, Fords and big cars lining the field from end to end. Umpiring on the part of Hutchinson of Eagle Bend caused some discussion, but there were no fatalities.

THE WATER TOWER RESTRAINING ORDER

Matter Heard by Judge W. S. McClenahan, Final Hearing July 10 by Judge C. W. Stanton

LEASE NOT PERMANENT ONE

Northern Pacific Railway Co. Made a Party to Suit—Improvement Alleged to Cost $40,000

Following application made by George H. Gardner, as a taxpayer, seeking a restraining order halting the erection by the city of a concrete water tower and tank on railway grounds, claiming the lease was an insufficient one for a city to enter into when building a permanent structure, Judge W. S. McClenahan heard the case in district court chambers and it was postponed to July 10 when Judge C. W. Stanton of Bemidji will hear the matter.

The Northern Pacific Railway company was made a party to the proceedings. The complaint was directed against the city, water and light board and W. S. Hewitt & Co., Minneapolis contractors.

The railway company gave the city a permissive lease, year by year, such as wholesale houses, warehouses, etc., hold along its right of way. Mr. Gardner claims a lease of more definite tenure is required. The water tower will carry a 300,000 gallon tank, the whole improvement costing about $40,000, it is alleged.

A. A. Weidemann, vice president of the water and light board, said the board considered all angles of the railway company's proposition of a free site for a water tower and the present location was one which the railway company intended to make and maintain as a park with no thought of ever disturbing by later occupancy.

"If the city requires a site," said Mr. Weidemann, "they will have to pay for it and also maintain a caretaker keeping the grounds in shape."

BRAINERD'S ODDEST STORIES OF TODAY

Pete Cardie admitted confidently and really not for publication that he was slow when it came to raising sweet peas and said it was no wonder George Hess beat him as Hess is a professional on that job, but Pete maintained that he had a record on raising pop corn. Pete's corn is 5 feet high and about ready to pop. There are ninety hills, four or five stalks to the hill all standing five feet in the clear and each stalk has two sets of ears. It was planted on Mother's Day, May 11.

Hearing adjourned for a quarter of an hour at the court house and Judge Walter F. Wieland, one of the attorneys for the city, was downstairs and met a couple anxious to be married. He performed the ceremony expeditiously and returned to the court $3 richer.

Koehler Making Good

Julio Koehler, who is pitching for the fast Cavalier, N. D., semi-professional baseball team, is doing fine work both on the mound and at bat. He pitched for Cavalier against Grafton Friday, winning his game by a score of 2 to 1, allowing but five hits. The newspaper account of the game says that "Koehler's twirling was gilt-edged." Joe Graves, another well remembered Long Prairie pitcher, met with defeat in a game he pitched Sunday for West Duluth. Joe allowed twenty hits, gave four bases on balls, hit one batsman and made three errors, being beaten by a score of 18 to 7. A local fan suggests that perhaps Joe had been out to the dance at Pillsbury Saturday evening. —Long Prairie Leader.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and Industry

The phases of usefulness the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) renders as a public servant are varied.

One of the services not generally known, which the Company must render, is to assist industrial institutions in keeping down their manufacturing costs.

The Company maintains a staff of highly trained lubricating engineers, whose business it is to go into industrial plants, make a careful and thorough study of their mechanical equipment, and determine what lubricants are best suited to each machine under the prevailing conditions.

Their constant effort is to keep down manufacturing costs by specifying the particular oils and greases that will enable the machinery to deliver a maximum of service at a minimum of cost.

The work of the lubricating engineers is a part of the comprehensive service the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) renders.

This is another phase of the usefulness of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) as a public servant, showing the constant effort being made by the Company to discharge its obligation in a complete and satisfactory manner.

INCREASES IN MINIMUM WAGES

Lowest Wages Which May be Paid Women and Minors Effective in State August 4th

BASED ON A 48 HOUR WEEK

The Apprentice Rates Also Raised—New Wage Minimums are Called Very Fair Ones

Increases in the lowest wages that may be paid lawfully to women and minors employed in the state are made effective Aug. 4, in an order adopted by unanimous vote of the Minnesota minimum wage commission, following public hearings Monday at the capitol.

The new wage minimums are $11 a week in cities of 5,000 or over and $10.25 in those of smaller population based upon a 48-hour week and in all cases 23 cents an hour must be paid for time in excess of 48 hours a week. The present minimum wages in Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth and other cities of more than 5,000 runs from $8.50 to $9 a week, regardless of whether the employee works 48 to 54 hours or longer.

Apprentice rates also are raised and the new schedules follow:

Persons under 18 years—$7.20 a week for the first three months' period; $8.65 for the second, and $10 for the third, then the regular minimum.

Persons 18 years or over—$8.65 a week for the first three months' period; $10 for the second, then the regular minimum.

Cities Under 5,000 Population
Persons under 18 years—$6.50 a week for the first three months' period; $7.75 for the second, and $9 for the third, then the regular minimum.

Persons 18 years or over—$7.75 a week for the first three months' period; $9 for the second, then the regular minimum.

The new wage minimums are based upon advances in the cost of living as found by the commission, and are regarded as "lowest living wages."

The allowance for room and board is placed at $7 a week or 22½ cents a meal in cities of 5,000 or over and at $6.25 a week or 21 cents a meal in smaller places.

The commission purposes to effect a rule whereby 10 hours' night work by a telephone operator shall be regarded as eight hours in towns of less than 5,000 population. Otherwise, however, the classification of occupations is omitted in the new order.

Forty-eight Hour Week

The 48-hour week was adopted as a standard and the extra 23 cents an hour allowance was made on a showing that longer hours leaves the worker less time to work for themselves and increase the cash cost of living. It was explained, for example, that the girl working 48 hours a week, has time in which to do laundering, sewing and other work which the girl working longer hours must pay to have done.

The new wage minimums are called "very fair" by Miss Eliza Evans, secretary and active member of the commission, who has conducted extensive investigations to obtain the information which guided the commission in its actions.

Prices Will Stay Up.

Washington, D. C.—The information and education service of the department of labor says that a sufficient number of replies have been received to the circular recently sent out to indicate a very large sentiment that there will not be any immediate reduction in prices and that the decline will be very gradual. It is stated that this opinion is current among business men of all classes and in all parts of the country.

Printers Raise Wages.

Tonopah, Nev.—The Typographical union has raised wages $1 a day for all members. The new rates are $48 a week for night work and $42 for day work.
